GIRLS' COSTUME.

Very pretty school and house dresses for girls are made of serges, merinos woolen cloths and flannels. A handsome model, made of wine-colored merino, has the skirt trimmed with a flounce composed of double box pleiats with wide spaces between, which are filled with straps of the material, bound with black velvet and sewed at each end to the skirt under black velvet buttons. The over dress, with apron front and slightly pan-iered at the back, is looped very high at the sides and finished on the bottom with bias band, edged on both sides with black velvet buttons.

A VERY STYLISH WALKING COSTUME for a miss of ten or tweleve years of age consists of a violet-colored cashmere skirt and casque. The skirt is trimned with three bias flounces, bound top and bottom with velvet of the same shads. The casque, which is very full and looped at the sides, has a wide bias band up the front which is edged with velvet and ornamented with velvet buttons of the same shape; violet velvet ribbon trims th waist and simulates a basque back and front. The bottom of the garment is finished with fringe, and they have loose Temperance Movement in the sleeves, and velvet and fringe, to correspond. The cape which belongs to the suit has the same trimming. PARTY DRESSES.

Party dresses are made of bright colored silks and gauzes, white gaze de Chambery, white silk grenadine, white alpaca and Death white Swiss, A very stylish costume made for a birthday party is of white silk grensdine, trimmed on the bottom with a rose colored gauze ruffle, very scantily gathered and headed by a gauze ruching. The overdress of gauze has the front breadth ruffled nearly to the waist; the back and side breadths, which display three ruilles, are looped and paniered ver high at the back and sides. The high grenadine corsage is trimmed with folds gauze which form bretelles; the ves which descend below the elbow finished with gauze ruffles with a ruching BOY SUITS.

A boy's suit, called the cutaway, which of gray and brown cassimere, of cheviots and cloth. The vest is high and the jucket, which fits loosely, shows the Derby ack; it is made with a collar with a single notch on each side, and which fastens low enough to display about three inches of the vest at the top; below this it falls apart to show the bottom of the vest. The pantaloons which are easy fitting reach to the knee. The pockets, cuffs and the edges of the jacket are finished with two rows of narrow braid; the same trim ming runs down the sides and finishes the bottom of the pantaloons. SAILOR SUITS.

Made of blue flannel and trimmed with white and black binding, and with black and gilt buttons, gathered and belted at the waist, and with sailor color and pointed cuffs; the knee pants are trimmed on the bottom and up the sides. The sailor hat should be worn with the suit, which as suitable for boys from three to ten Sr Paul, Jan. 25.—The Daily Press says years of age. A similar blouse or sack that Gen. Both the King William overcoat, with cape falling over the arm like a sleeve and the overcoat with a full cape, fastened under the collar by buttons, are in vogue for boys.
